

CHAPTER 19 | Conjunctions

Get cracking

Write the correct joining word on each joining strip. Choose from the bubbles.

I bought a toy car forgot to buy the batteries.

I will eat a burger

a pizza. I cannot eat both.

I want to buy a pencil

a pen. I need both.

Know more

A And, but, or

The words and, but and or are called joining words. These words are also called conjunctions.

- We use and to join similar things or ideas.

Example: My mother is very caring and gentle.

- We use but to join opposite things or ideas.

Examples: He fell down but did not cry.

- We use or for a choice.

Examples: They can go to a park or swim in the pool.

Definition

Conjunctions are words that join two sentences.

B Join the sentences using and, or, but. One has been done for you.

- It was thundering. It was raining.

It was thundering and raining.

- His teacher was scolding him. He was laughing.

His teacher was scolding him but he was laughing.

- They can go to Mahali by bus. They can go to Mahali by train.

They can go to Mahali by bus or train.

- We can play cricket. We can play football.

We can play cricket or football.

- I called you. You did not come.

I called you but did not come.

- They look very gentle. They are rude.

They look very gentle but they are rude.

- She says she loves her dog. She never plays with it.

She says she loves her dog but never plays with it.

- I like apples. I like mangoes.

I like apples and mangoes.

C So, because

- We use so to show the result of an action.

Example: She lost her phone so she bought a new one.

- We use because to show reason.

Examples: I came late because I missed the bus.

D Join the two sentences using because or so. One has been done for you.

1. Mihika could not see. It was dark.

Mihika could not see because it was dark.

2. She is angry with me. I am upset.

She is angry with me so I am upset.

3. It was raining. The match was cancelled.

It was raining so the match was cancelled.

4. The mouse helped the lion. The lion was caught in a net.

The mouse helped the lion because the lion was caught in a net.

5. I told mom a joke. She laughed.

I told mom a joke so she laughed.

6. Arun bought mangoes. He likes them.

Arun bought mangoes because he likes them.

7. We got the trophy. We had won the match.

We got the trophy because we had won the match.

8. I love my mom. I help her.

I love my mom so I help her.

E Fill in the blanks by choosing the correct conjunction from the brackets.

1. He does not take tea or coffee. (but/or)

2. He is ill, so he has not gone to school. (so/because)

3. Mr Ali is 55 but he looks younger. (but/and)

4. My teacher is kind but quite firm with his students. (but/so)

5. I got dressed and went to school. (but/and)

6. She was angry with me because I was late. (because/and)